Fourteen Nigerian states recorded 24 violent incidents that resulted in 41 casualties (39 fatalities and two injured victims) and seven kidnap victims between November 12th and 18th, 2023. In this review period, all three parameters (Incidents, casualties, and kidnap victims) decreased compared to the previous week. Kaduna state ranked the highest in fatality count, recording 11 cases, due to an attack on bandits by the Nigerian Army in Birnin Gwari Local Government Area (LGA). The state also recorded the highest incident tally, with five cases involving bandits, civilians, religious groups, and security personnel. Two persons each were abducted in Kaduna, Kwara, and Osun states within the same period. During the review period, gunmen violence is the most common form of conflict with eight casualties (seven fatalities and one injured victim) and five kidnap victims from nine incidents. Banditry is second, with six incidents resulting in 16 fatalities and two kidnap victims. The North West region remains the most troubled even in this review week, with eight violent incidents resulting in 21 fatalities and two kidnap victims.
